

There is a common saying that “a man coming of age is to marry and girl coming of age is to get married”. But, in modern society, the saying goes the way that more and more people don't want to get married. There are some objective and subjective reasons. First, the house price, especially in some big cities, increases greatly. The wage earner getting limited wages who wants to afford an apartment always needs ten years or longer time to afford an apartment. So a few of sweeties have to postpone the wedding day because of lacking of fixed habitation. Second, to some younger, the family is restriction. They want to be free of making appointment with chosen friends and colleagues. In vacation or at the weekend they can be free to the field. Third, there is a common phenomenon of cohabitation without getting married. They get along for a period of time. If two parts get harmony, then they get married. If two parts were out of keeping with each other, they would say bye-bye.

Another old saying goes like this “Among the three unfilial behaviors no decedent ranks the first”. Yet, nowadays, there appears increasing number of people who choose to remain single all the lives or to have no children. Appearance of such social phenomenon, it has a few reasons. Some women are afraid that pregnancy would destroy their stature and make them aging faster. Some females worry that they would be laid off and demoted by boss because they had to have long time to rest to give birth. In modern society, the competence is more and more fierce. Some pairs fear nurturing children would make them distracted and let them in disadvantageous position. Fostering babies is a great burden and it will cost a lot of money. So if a few of families have no enough amassment, they shouldn't think about giving birth. Some pairs think baby is boring and baby's crying jangles on their nerves. Replacing child's napkin is an unacceptable job. So when they think about birthing, they hesitate. Other spouses prefer to a free life and don't want to be limited by children. But I don't think so.

The phenomenon of not having children will generate bad effect to society. The younger have great creativity and imagination. They will be the main labor force in our society. If we want to make great wealth and achieve invincible position in world competence, we must depend on them. The younger are filled with dynamism and make our society filled with energy. Our country successfully launched Shenzhou VI Spacecraft and made world astonished. In the course of fulfilling this magnificent undertaking, it springed up and overcame one by one hardship. If we all don't give birth, how could we have so many intelligent scientists. Not only we should bring up a child but also we rather ought to teach our children to be ridgepole. They would put forward our enterprise farther and make our country more gloriousness. On the other hand, our society is walking into aged tendency. There are more elders. These elders must be accompanied and supported by their sons or girls. Bringing up children is not only our responsibility but also our privilege.

Children are crystal of love and important contact to our marriage. When marriage has contradiction and chasm, child always take the effect of relief. Although, fostering child is laborious working, it can give us much pleasure. When our children grow up a little or take a little progress. We are always delight in secret. The genius and cuteness of children give us great pleasure. The children's speaking without reservation let us burst into laughter. If a friend of mine tells me that he doesn't want to have a family. I will persuade him to get married and have a child. They are not only our responsibility but also giving us feeling of accommodation and bringing us much pleasure as well. After a day's hard working we always exhausted. When we walk into home, see our lovely children and play with them, the tiredness will fade away. In a word, a happy family should have a child.
